

Mendip Ropemakers Limited

Manufacturers of traditional Church Bell Ropes

All of our ropes are handmade using traditional and established techniques. Since the start of Mendip Ropemakers in 2012, we have always ensured that the best materials and skills are used to enable us to manufacture bell ropes of the highest quality.

Our merino wool is sourced from within the UK and we have strong relationships with both flax and hemp mills in Eastern Europe. We have worked hard with our suppliers to ensure that our pre-stretched polyester has the minimum stretch and also are skilled in the use of Dyneema which offers a zero-stretch alternative to polyester.

Mendip Ropemakers Limited is two years old! It's been a busy two years of trading for Mendip Ropemakers and our work has reached many happy customers throughout the UK and overseas. A full list of our recent customers can be found on our web site, but includes Wells Cathedral, Canterbury Cathedral, Washington DC Cathedral and bells of Congress, Sherborne Abbey, Harare Cathedral South Africa, St Martins in the Fields London, Miami Cathedral USA, Quebec Cathedral Canada.....to name just a few!

During April of 2014, Mendip Ropemakers relocated to a new premises in Isle Brewers. The new building offers a lot more space and we can now boast two fully operational rope walks. The benefit of this is that we can now manufacture more ropes, quicker!

Groups of ringers are always welcome to come and watch the rope making process. Please arrange with us in advance.
